DR. J. A. HOLMES TO HEAD NEW DEPARTMENT OF MINES.

Appointment Comes as Pleading Surprise to Mining Men Who Fought So Hard to Have It Made.

BALLINGER WAS AGAINST IT

Secretary of Interior Favored E. W. Parker But Mining Men From All Parts of Country United on Holmes as Logical Man For the Job.

Dr. Joseph Austin Holmes was yesterday appointed director of the Bureau of Mines by President William H. Taft. Thus the long fight, waged by coal mine owners of the east and west, owners of the metal mines of the country, by coal and metal miners of the United States and by Senators and Congressmen, to secure the place for Dr. Holmes has been successful. The announcement was made yesterday at Beverly, Mass.

As chief of the technologic division of the Geological Survey, Dr. Holmes has been in general charge of the work of the Aerial test station in Pittsburgh.

When Congress decided to expand the technologic division of the Geological Survey into a new bureau, it was supposed that Dr. Holmes would be made director. A dozen delegations presented his name for consideration. Later it cropped out, that there was opposition. His supporter, George Otis Smith, was placed in temporary charge of the Bureau of Mines. Several names were presented to President Taft. It developed that Secretary Richard A. Ballinger of the Department of the Interior and Director Smith were opposed to Holmes.

Dr. Holmes is a personal friend of Clifford Pluchet, who was chief of the United States Geological Survey. James H. Garfield, Ballinger's predecessor in the Interior Department, and F. H. Newell, then director of the reclamation service. All three sharply criticized Ballinger, who, incidentally, felt that Holmes might have had a hand in what he termed the "conspiracy" against him.

Dr. Holmes had friends. He said nothing but they worked hard for him. Delegations of western mine owners and operators, delegations of the coal miners, operators and diggers went to Washington to see President Taft. The last delegation included representatives from the United Mine Workers of America. The mining powder manufacturers also were for Dr. Holmes, although it was part of his duties to examine and report on their product. It was noticed that interests upon whose toes Dr. Holmes, in the course of duty, had stepped, were for him. Senator Charles Dick circulated a petition for his appointment among the Senators, and 62 of the 92 members of that body signed it.

One of the purposes of the bureau is to investigate safety appliances to prevent waste of life in mining. It also will make investigations looking to the improvement of methods of mining. The engineers and technicians of the Bureau of Mines have gained the plaudits of the whole country for their recent work at mine disasters. It was realized that they took their time as much from their immediate superior, Dr. Holmes, as from their own brave spirit.

It was understood that Ballinger and Smith favored the appointment of Edward W. Parker, chief of the division of mining and mineral resources of the Geological Survey, as director.

WEEK OF RAIN DISPELS DROUGHT.

Danger of a Water Famine is Averted by Welcome Showers.

THE RIVER IS GOING UP

For the First Time in More Than a Month It Shows More Than a Foot at the Bridge Here—Coke Operations Put in Better Shape.

Almost a week of rain has resulted in averting a serious water famine. This week has been decidedly wet, repeated showers coming just at a time when they would do most good. As a consequence mountain streams are being replenished, the river is rising and the water supply is no longer dangerously near exhaustion.

The rain will also help the crops, although the growers are in very bad shape. This hot sun literally scorched the grass, causing it to lose much nutrition. It will be freshened by the rain, however, and considerably improved.

To the coke operators of the region the rain means that there will be sufficient water to continue operations. For a time some of the independent plants were in bad shape for want of water. The Baltimore & Ohio railroad in also put in better shape by the showers. The main line was for a time seriously handicapped for want of water and much freight traffic was diverted to the Connelleville division as a consequence.

The river this morning showed a stage of 1.20 feet. This is the first time since July 21 the gauge has shown one foot or better. The river rose from 0.55 to 1.20 over night. Although yesterday was an ideal day, rain began falling early this morning. The downpour was that steady kind which saturates into the ground and does much good. All the rain this week has been of that nature and not the kind that is carried off on the surface before the ground can absorb sufficient moisture to be of benefit.

Office, Get Service and

ADDITIONAL SUITS BROUGHT

Fifty-Six More Filed in Westmoreland County Against Labor Leaders. Situation is Quiet—Big Demonstration Labor Day.

Special to The Courier.
GREENSBURG, Sept. 3.—The only service made in Westmoreland county up to noon today in the suits of the mine operators against the union of leaders who came to Sheriff Shields' office late yesterday and entered bail. The men who surrendered were: John Morgan, Thomas Stumacher and Joseph Littlewood.

Sheriff Shields has as yet sent no detentions out with the sheaves of warrants that have been turned over to him and it is not known when the service will start. It is said that as rapidly as the labor leaders learn bail has been arranged for them they will come in without being sent for.

The danger of trouble seems to have been averted and Sheriff Shields will not appoint additional deputies. The strike sympathizers are inclined to treat the matter as a joke.

The proposition of arbitration, broached by the business men of Greensburg, Layton and Latrobe, meets with little success. The operators declare they have nothing to arbitrate. The only questions involved, they say, are recognition of the union and adoption of the Pittsburgh scale. Neither of these would be accepted.

The operators state that intervention by Colonel Roosevelt would avail nothing.

A monster demonstration is planned by the strikers at Greensburg on Monday.

Four more strike leaders intended to surrender yesterday but they were not quite ready. They promised to return and be "arrested."

In addition to the suits filed by the Westmoreland Coal & Coke Company two more bills were filed with the Prothonotary by the Penn Gas Coal Company and the Union Gas Coal Company. Each bill for the arrest of over 80 defendants and damages to the amount of $500,000, making a total of $1,500,000 damages for the day and with those of yesterday the figures of $2,000,000 damages are asked from the strikers in Westmoreland county alone.

People are expected to be in attendance from all parts of this section of the county. It is said there will be hundreds present. There are many customs of the church to go through with, among them the washing of feet.

MENTAL SUGGESTION IS CAUSE OF ALIENATION

That is the Contention of Mike Kneecik in $5,000 Damage Suit Today.

Special to The Courier.
UNIONTOWN, Sept. 3.—Mental suggestion is the basis of a suit for $5,000 filed today by Mike Kneecik against Joseph Labodinski. Mike declared that Joseph had alienated the affections of his wife, who deserted him last July and has since been "totally and wholly under the control" of the defendant, who uses mental telepathy to charm his victim.

COAL OWNERS FORM A HOLDING TRUST.

Connellsville Men are Interested in Washington County Land.

THE TRUSTEES ARE SELECTED

Cyrus Eehard, W. A. Bishop and Jacob Detweiler Will Hold the Land and It is Not to Be Developed at the Present.

At a meeting of a number of Washington county coal owners in the office of the Dunlap-Coke-Bell-Coke Company last evening the holdings of the several owners of the Gunkel tract of land were decided to Cyrus Eehard, W. A. Bishop and Jacob Detweiler, to be held in trust. Through Mr. Detweiler, a party from Scottdale was granted a 60-day option on the holdings at $500 an acre.

Nearly all of the owners of the tract are Connelleville men. The land was purchased four years ago from the following: Henry Gunkel, 173 acres; T. J. Burnard, 87; Ross Moschewell, 119. All of the 379 acres lie between the Ellsworth and the Marianna mines, of the Pittsburgh-Butte Coal Company, in Bethelbom township.

As the owners do not intend to operate they considered it advisable to make the deed of trust, rather than take out incorporation papers, owing to the heavy State tax. By this method the expense and trouble of going to Orphans' Court in case of the death of one of the holders is done away with.

Those interested in the coal land are: Cyrus Eehard, John B. Davis, Grant Dall, C. E. Bishop, William A. Bishop, John F. Bluff, of Scottdale; Emerson Arnold of Vanderburg, George W. Buttermore, Edwin T. and Leroy R. Keshler, of Youngwood, Homer C. Davis, Samuel N. Springer and Clark Collins, John A. Keshler, Frank Bailey, Wade H. Marietta, Frank C. Rose, John T. McClay, John Rush estate, Thomas Dalley, Jacob C. Detweiler and James A. Dunn.

FRENCH GOES TO CUMBERLAND?

Former Trainmaster on That Division Will Be Made Superintendent Western Maryland Plans May Have Something to Do With Shift.

It is reported about town that Superintendent J. J. Driscoll will return to Connelleville division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad in the near future and railroad men are looking for an order to that effect within the next few weeks. Superintendent C. L. French, it is said, will be transferred to the Cumberland division as superintendent. He was trainmaster on that division before being promoted to Connelleville.

That Western Maryland plans have something to do with the proposed shift on the Baltimore & Ohio is the theory of those who believe the rumor of the shift is correct. Superintendent Driscoll was literally raised on the Connelleville division. He knows the entire territory like a book and is especially well posted on the tonnage sources of the district. With the Western Maryland sending F. L. Bradley, an old Connelleville division man, in charge of its new line, the Baltimore & Ohio will have to be on the aggressive all the time if it expects to hold its own.

Mr. French, it is said, has met with more than the usual run of hard luck that faces a new man on a railroad job. Besides repeated mishaps on the Somerset & Cambria branch, the new Superintendent also had the misfortune to lose his general yardmaster in Connelleville. The breaking in of a new man on this job is no small task as the position of yardmaster is one of the most important on a division.

The fact that Mr. French had just completed a new home in Cumberland, which has not been disposed of, and that Superintendent Driscoll has not moved his family to Cumberland is regarded as significant. The Driscolls are still occupying their pretty home east of town.

Deffenbaugh Gives Advice on School Work

Until it is seen how the enrollment is at the different buildings the division lines in the schools will be the same as last year except for those pupils of Grade 8 who live on Apple, Snyder and Main streets up as far as Fayette street. These will report at the North Ward, according to an announcement of Superintendent Deffenbaugh today.

Pupils who will be six years of age before January may enter now and those who will be six between January 1 and June may enter after the Christmas holidays. Parents are advised not to force the educational progress by saying their children are six years of age when they are only five. A child needs to romp and play in the open air until he is six or seven years old, says Superintendent Deffenbaugh.

To bring about a better relation between home and school, parents are cordially invited to visit the schools that they may become acquainted with the teachers.

The Superintendent will hear complaints if they are founded upon exact knowledge and not upon rumor or upon what some one thinks. Mr. Deffenbaugh suggests if parents have any grievance it should be brought to him before it is discussed with the neighbors across the way who always tell what she hears with a little added. If a parent finds that a teacher has erred and no teacher is faultless, the matter should not be talked over in the presence of the child.

It is to be hoped that every boy and girl of school age in Connelleville will be present the first day of school. A few days' absence now may mean a poor work, because the pupil will be lost by missing the first lessons in new subjects. To be fair to all, those who enter several weeks late may not be permitted to go on with their classes.

SANE FOURTH IS GREAT IMPROVEMENT

2,923 Persons Hurt of Whom Only 131 Died in 1910 Celebration of Nation's Birthday.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Although the list of deaths and accidents due to the celebration of the Fourth of July is appalling, the "sane" observance of the day this year shows a notable improvement, according to statistics compiled by the Journal of the American Medical Association, which were made public today.

The decrease in accidents is most marked in those sections where restrictive legislation has been put in effect.

Two thousand nine hundred and twenty-three persons were injured July 4, this year, of which 131 died. Jaw Broken in Argument Over Penny KITTANNING, Sept. 3.—William Dummeyer, aged 37, of Manorville and a brakeman on the Allegheny Valley railroad last night at Manorville station had a quarrel over a penny and Dummeyer today is at his home with a broken jaw and several of his teeth are missing.

Dummeyer got on a train at Ford City to go to Manorville. He gave the brakeman 25 cents for his fare. The brakeman gave Dummeyer 19 cents in change. Dummeyer claimed the fare was but five cents and demanded the other cent.

The brakeman told Dummeyer the fare was six cents and there was no more change coming to him. When the train reached Manorville Dummeyer and the brakeman started to settle their difference on the platform. One blow was struck and Dummeyer was rendered unconscious.

Delicately Formed

and gently reared, women will find in all the seasons of their lives, as maidens, wives and mothers, that the one simple, wholesome laxative remedy, which acts gently and pleasantly and naturally and which may be taken at any time, when the system needs a laxative, with perfect safety and really beneficial effects, is Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

It has that true delicacy of flavor which is so refreshing to the taste, that warming and grateful to the stomach which responds so favorably to its action and the laxative effect, which is so beneficial to the system when, occasionally, its gentle cleansing is required.

The genuine, always bearing the name of the California Fig Syrup Co., may be purchased from all leading druggists in original packages of one size only, price fifty cents per bottle.

SATURDAY EVENING, SEP. 2, 1910.

THE NEW DIRECTOR OF THE BUREAU OF MINES.

The appointment of Dr. Joseph Austin Holmes as Chief of the Bureau of Mines will be received with satisfaction by the representatives of all branches of the coal mining industry in the United States.

Dr. Holmes was the logical candidate for this position by reason of his connection with the Geological Division of the United States Geological Survey and his close connection with the Pittsburgh Testing Station. He was also prominent in promoting and promoting the Bureau of Mines proposition and in shaping the bill under which it was created by the Congress. In experience and technical education he is admittedly well qualified to fill the position. Hence his almost unanimous endorsement by the mining interests of the country and the general favor with which his name was received by Senators and Congressmen.

The opposition to Dr. Holmes came from within the Department of the Interior and was created and fostered chiefly by the rivalry of other ambitions. These unfortunately engaged the endeavors of Secretary Dillinger, and his, and the opposition was the moving cause which held up the appointment so long.

The President, however, seems to have weighed the matter carefully and to have arrived at his decision conscientiously; and it is the consensus of opinion in mining circles that he will have no cause to regret having placed Dr. Holmes at the head of the Bureau of Mines.

SAFEGUARDING AGAINST PANIC.

The decision of the Treasury Department concerning commercial paper against which emergency currency may be issued removes practically all danger of another money panic such as shook the financial world from center to circumference in 1908 and 1907.

It is estimated that the banks of the country will be able under this official interpretation of the law to issue in times of stress something like $500,000,000 of emergency currency, which amount will be quite sufficient to counteract the panic-breeding effects of the army of timid hoarders who upon the slightest sign of financial distress withdraw their money from the banks and hoard it.

There are no present indications of any necessity for the employment of this derelict resort, but it is comforting to know that the country has such ample protection against the folly of its people.

INSURGENTS AND PROGRESSIVES.

Colonel Roosevelt declares that he is not an insurgent but a Progressive. An insurgent is one in rebellion against the government or the party, while a Progressive is one who seeks to improve without destroying the existing order of things.

An insurgent is a rebel outside the Republican ranks; a Progressive is a reformer within the ranks. One seeks to tear down; the other, to build better and stronger.

We assume that Colonel Roosevelt believes with President Taft that a Republican Congress composed of Standpaters and Progressives is better than a Democratic Congress composed of Democrats and Insurgents.

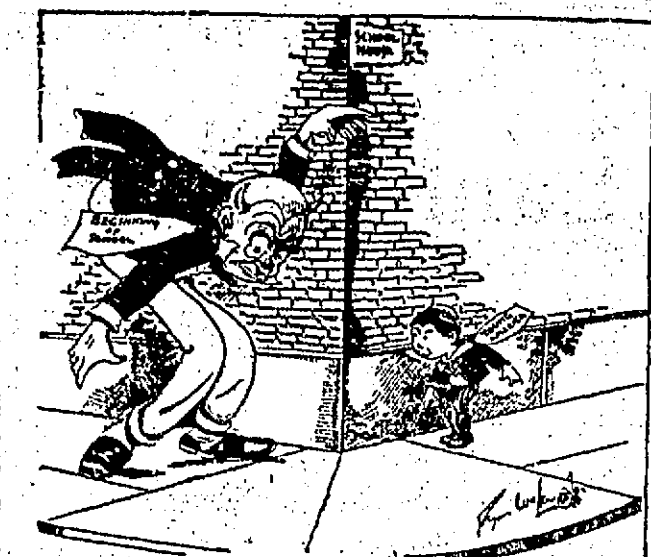

Every honest Republican feels the same way.

A SMALL BUSINESS WITH LARGE PROFITS.

The suggestion of the Chamber of Commerce that regarding should be encouraged is a good one, but just how to do it effectually has not been determined.

The chamber is powerless to compel the local farmers to go into trucking; it can only try through the medium of the press to persuade them. If they were thorough officers, they might be manipulated or enfolded, but it is the fact that it is nothing but moral suasion remaining.

Seriously, however, it is rather surprising that the small farmers on the edge of Conneltsville, have not sooner given this crop their earnest consideration. The intelligent truck farmer can always have a very profitable business. The demand for this class of foodstuffs in the Conneltsville coke region is brisk and continuous, and the prices are high enough to guarantee liberal profits.

Trucking is a small business with large returns on the investment.

THINGS FOR VOTERS TO KEEP IN MIND.

It is time to remind voters of certain important dates.

The last day to be assessed for the November election is Wednesday, next, September 21st.

The last day to pay taxes to qualify for voting at the November election is Saturday, October 8th.

The election will be held on Tuesday, November 8th.

The matter of a clean town is important, but it can with confidence be left to the borough authorities. Street Commissioner Houtz has always been an active and energetic officer, and if he has been in any manner lax in his work this summer, it has not been because he did not have the inclination, but perhaps because he did not have sufficient funds at his command. The defeat of the proposed bond issues has crippled the borough administration considerably. It is doing the best it can under the circumstances.

Sitting on the railing is sometimes as dangerous as sitting on the rail.

It is too late for Conneltsville to prepare for an industrial exposition this fall. The Chamber of Commerce has already proposed the winter months when there is a paucity of subjects for debate.

Crime will cringe next week.

"What's the use of quarantining dogs in Mud Island when some editors are allowed to run around unmuzzled?" asks the Liontown Bugle. Did one of 'em bite you, sumit?

The proposed Fayette county orphan home seems to cling around Conneltsville.

The Standard Oil Trust has reduced the price of oil 10 per cent. The road goes to show that Trusts can regulate themselves if they try.

Mercer has ordered the Pennsylvania railroad to install safety gates at three grade crossings within the borough. If the order has no more effect than some of the official demands of the Conneltsville Council, it will not accomplish much.

"The editorials in the Courier have become fairly grammatical since the editor has taken the precaution of having them revised by one of the high school professors," says the High Water Herald. This is No. 1,325,711.

Civil Service, like Charity, covereth a multitude of sins.

Colonel Roosevelt is for peace if possible, but war if necessary.

Franklin township people are frank even when they are fuddled. One conscientious citizen of that township complained against himself for being drunk, and served a proper term in the Conneltsville lock-up. He was stern in his own condemnation and sincere in his eloquent plea for mercy.

"Probably the reason the milk supply is short in Conneltsville is because some of the Mud Island editors are in their second childhood," says the Liontown Bugle. No; third childhood.

Conneltsville's runaway boy has been located in Freedom. He probably thought he was heading in about right, but he didn't like his Freedom when he got there.

It is safer for the painter to spill his paint than to spill himself from the side of an eight-story building.

The Liontown Herald builds a new Western Maryland railroad every day, yet it objects to the Courier building a depot in Conneltsville. The Herald has an awfully mean disposition.

Foreign immigrants are following the advice of Horace Greeley and going West where there is plenty of room to grow up with the country.

Foreign weddings and christenings are rocky affairs.

So small a thing as a penny is capable of starting a jaw-breaking argument.

The Conneltsville News announces that it is attending strictly to its own business. We infer from this statement that The News does not consider that it is any of its business to resent or dispute the statement that Conneltsville is a "burnt-out town" with nothing remaining but "a glorious past."

The Westmoreland county coal operators do not embrace with ardor the suggestion to leave the strike difference to the arbitration of Colonel Hoover. They probably fear that their business might get mixed up with politics.

The railroad invasion of Green county is getting ready to cross the Rubicon.

The Republican campaign will be formally opened at Charlestown this evening, rain or no rain. The Republicanism of the Republican candidate will not be washed out by raindrops, nor does it turn yellow with disappointment or envy. It is true blue and fast colors.

The wisdom of frequent changes in railroad division superintendents is being questioned by the new U. S. A. management, and perhaps not without reason.

The Liontown Herald says it printed the substance of Counselor Higbee's address on third-class city government several days prior to its delivery, but not in such an entertaining and instructive manner.

The Newark, O., authorities are having it drastically impressed upon them that it is their duty to preserve law and order within their bailiwick.

"Fighting Bob" Evans doesn't believe in Prohibition because it doesn't prohibit. He says his men were wont to get drunk in the Maine ports than anywhere else.

Conneltsville is not only getting new industries, but she is enlarging her old ones. There are no surer evidences of a growing town.

Wild West hold-ups are no longer the best business enterprise.

"Hell hath no fury like a licked editor," says the Liontown Herald. Calm yourself, brother. You'll get used to it in time.

Conneltsville people should pay closer attention to the recommendations of Postmaster Kurtz concerning private mail receptacles in their houses or at their doorways. Not only will such boxes facilitate the delivery of the mail, but they will also encourage the Postoffice Department to lengthen and strengthen all deliveries in the town.

"That Western Maryland road does not look as good to Conneltsville as it did a few days ago," says the Liontown Herald. Conneltsville people will note this, ridiculous inconsistency. It's just a sample.

The Liontown Chamber of Commerce has appointed a Committee on Milkways. It will not be the duty of the members of this committee to work the roads, facilitate the delivery of the milk, but they will work the road-makers.

We see no occasion for the proposed advance in the price of milk. It has rained.

J. Pluvius is getting liberal.

Colonel Roosevelt complains that foreign nations think we are "more corrupt than we really are. This is too bad. We are positively not all Male-factors of Great Wealth."

ONE FAMILY HAS FOUR FEVER CASES.

Rev. Butner and Three Children are Typhoid Victims.

MOTHER ONLY ONE NOT SICK

But Even She May Be Stricken Down.
Rev. and Mrs. Hayes Celebrate Their Twenty-fifth Wedding Anniversary.
Other Social Notes.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTTSVILLE, Sept. 3.—Typhoid fever now numbers four victims in one home, the most in one family yet recorded in Scottsville. Rev. N. W.
Butner, pastor of the First United Brethren Church, on Market street, now has the fever in severe form and has been taken to the Mt. Pleasant hospital. His three children have the disease and Virginia was reported to be in a serious condition last night.
This makes Mrs. Butner the only one well of the family and it cannot be told when she may take ill. A nurse is at the home.

Miss Custard Dead.
Word from Oilpoint, Pa., came received by relatives here last night that Miss Elizabeth Custard, a member of a pioneer family of Western Pennsylvania, and the authoress of a historical work in story form of Mayette county is dead, aged 80 years.
The funeral services will be this morning at 10:30 from her late home at Custard's Crossing on the West
Penn. trolley out of Uniontown.

Thomas Winbrenner is in wrong and Justice John C. Brownfield has sent him to jail resting under a $1,000 bond on a charge of attempting to kill his wife and marked by the neighbors as a general nuisance. It was charged that Winbrenner came home drunk and while his wife was washing clothes he sent a little money to help the family the husband threw the clean clothes out in the dirty yard, and then handled her roughly and made threats that he would kill the woman.

Silver Wedding Event.
The 25th anniversary of the marriage of Rev. J. S. Hayes and Miss Ella Leichter was celebrated by a surprise party given at the Evanson United Brethren parsonage last evening. The wedding was solemnized 25 years ago by Presiding Elder J. E.
McClay when Rev. Mr. Hayes was stationed at Springfield. He was born at Johnstown and his bride was born in Springfield. There were present about 70 relatives and friends, some of them being here from Ohio and the celebration was a great success, reflecting much credit upon Miss Ella Hayes, a daughter, who planned the event and caused it to be a complete surprise to her parents. The house was beautifully decorated in white and silver, while Rev. and Mrs.
Hayes were away and the crowd greeted them on their return. The couple were the recipients of numerous beautiful and useful presents, including silver, cut glass, china, linens, etc.
There was an elaborate luncheon served and vocal and instrumental music were features of the evening.
Had a Corn Roast.

Mrs. James P. Strickler entertained the pupils of her class in the First Methodist Episcopal Sunday School at their fifth annual class outing yesterday afternoon and evening. The entertainment was a picnic supper followed by a corn roast in a wooded part of town, and an enjoyable time was had, a big sack of roasted ears being taken out from town and roasted in the embers.
Mrs. Ruth Henderson.
Mrs. Ruth Henderson, widow of the late Rev. Thomas Henderson, pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian church at New Salem, died at the home of Miss Mary Campbell on Chestnut street last evening, aged 80 years.
Mrs. Henderson came here from Connecticut and had been ill for some time from cancer. The deceased was a sister of Morgan Campbell who died here a few weeks ago. The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home. Burial Monday.

Burglars are Active About Somerset Homes

Special to The Courier.
SOMERSET, Sept. 3.—Burglars are again exhibiting great activity in Somerset and a large number of cases of housebreaking have been reported.
Thursday night robbers entered the home of George M. Baker, a widely known deputy sheriff, but in forcing their entrance to the house Mr.
Baker was awakened. He turned on the light and the burglars fled. They also entered the home of W. S. Walker and made their way to his bed room, where they took one paper dollar from his trousers pocket.

The night before the department store of Saffell & Countrymen, large furniture and piano dealers of West Main street, was burglarized, and about $51 was taken from the till.
Officers state that there is a strong chain of circumstantial evidence pointing to certain parties and that several arrests will likely be made shortly.

GEORGE E. ROBERTS RETURNS TO BE DIRECTOR OF MINT.

BEVERLY, Mass., Sept. 3.—George E. Roberts is to return to Washington as director of the Mint, and A. Platt Andrews, who succeeded Mr. Roberts when the latter resigned from the place he is now to resume, will remain in the treasury department as assistant secretary. This has been announced from the summer White House. Mr. Roberts resigned from the government service to become president of the Commercial National Bank of Chicago, but since that time the institution has been merged with the Continental National Bank, and Mr. Roberts has been engaged in private business pursuits. A. Platt Andrews left the mint directorship when

C. D. Norton was made the president's secretary.

PUTS AN END TO INDIGESTION AND A SOUR, GASSY, UPSET STOMACH.

A Little Diapiesin relieves bad Stomach in five minutes.

As there is often some one in your family who suffers an attack of indigestion or some form of Stomach trouble, why don't you keep some Diapiesin in the house handy?

This harmless blessing will digest anything you can eat without the slightest discomfort, and overcome a sour, gassy Stomach five minutes after.

Tell your pharmacist to let you read the formula, plainly printed on these 60-cent cases of Pape's Diapiesin, then you will readily see why it makes Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Heartburn and other distresses go in five minutes, and relieves at once such miseries as Belching of Gas, Eructations of sour, indigested food, Nausea, Headaches, Dizziness, Constipation

and other Stomach disorders.

Sound folks have tried so long to find relief from Indigestion and Dyspepsia or an out-of-order stomach with the common, everyday cures advertised that they have about made up their minds that they have something else wrong, or believe there is a case of Nervousness, Gastritis, Catarrh of the Stomach or Cancer.

This, no doubt, is a serious mistake. Your real trouble is, what you eat does not digest; instead, it ferments and sours, turns to acid, Gas and Stomach poison, which poisons
the digestive tract and intestines, and, besides, poisons the breath with nauseous odor.

A hearty appetite, with thorough digestion, and without the slightest discomfort or misery of the Stomach, is waiting for you as soon as you decide to try Pape's Diapiesin.

Shoots Himself by Accident and Death May Result

Special to The Courier.
MEYERSDALE, Sept. 2.—W. A.
McCune, the well known local news agent, was the victim of a serious misfortune Friday afternoon. While inspecting a revolver belonging to a friend named Kendall, the weapon was accidentally discharged. The bullet, passing through the fleshy part of the arm just above the elbow, entered the body about one inch below the heart, and causing diagnosed through the intestines, is lodged somewhere in the region of the right groin. The unfortunate man was taken to his home at 122 Centre street, and Doctors Fidelity, Largo and Henderson summoned, who succeeded in locating the bullet, but after working as long as the patient could stand their probing for it, they did not at this writing succeed in extracting it.

It is understood that the doctors pronounced the wound a very dangerous one, and the patient will in all likelihood be removed to the hospital. Much sympathy is felt for the injured man and his family in their joint misfortune.

ROYAL HEIRS DRESS SELVES.
Queen Mary inculcates Feeling of Independence in Children.
Queen Mary of England dislikes children to be pampered and petted to the extent of spoiling, and she has seen to it that her own children shall not suffer in this respect. She has been a Spartan mother and has inculcated that they shall cultivate a spirit of Independence.

As soon as their small fingers can wrestle with tapes and buttons the youngsters are made to dress themselves. Princess Mary now has a maid of her own, but the maid was not allowed until the small lady had mastered the art of managing without help.

MINERS SEEK PUBLIC SUPPORT.

ARBITRATION IS TALKED OF

Three Other Leaders Furnish Ball in Legal Action Brought by Operators in Irwin Field—International Officers of Union Will Battle.

Pittsburg, Sept. 3.—Three other leaders of District No. 6, United Mineworkers of America, responded to the circulars issued against them and furnished bail to the amount of $2,100 each; the executive board of the labor organization issued an appeal for moral and financial support to the public and every labor organization in the state; and Mayor William A.
Magee announced his willingness to act as arbitrator in the controversy between the miners and the operators.
These are developments in the legal struggle started Wednesday when seven coal companies operating in the Irwin coal field filed suits against eighty-seven officers and members of the miners' organization asking $2,000,000 damages, they allege they sustained because of the strike in progress in the coal field.

It is expected the International officials of the United Mineworkers of America will be able to devote their entire attention to the strike in the Irwin field by the beginning of next week.

From all sections of the country
there came to the miners' officers of assistance in the fight they are making. Prominent attorneys offered to defend the accused men, but President Feehan declared that they will rest their fate with Attorney William J. Brennan. He was pleased at the offer of assistance, but has great faith in the local attorney.

Fehan Answers Scandrett.
Regarding the charge of Attorney
R. B. Scandrett that he had misled the miners in the Irwin field, Feehan said:

"It was only when fifty-seven men in the employ of the Keystone Coal and Coke company, who had formed a union on their own initiative, were discharged for that act, that I felt it my duty to step in and offer the men who were discriminated against aid.
The men, in the first place, felt that the union was a good thing for them and, with but little preparation, a local was organized. Hardly had it become known to the company officials when the drastic action of a wholesale dismissal was taken."

"As the Irwin field is a part of the district over which I have jurisdiction I was bound, under our laws and regulations, to take cognizance of the act of open hostility on the part of the company. Notwithstanding we made every effort to secure an amicable adjustment of the matter, our efforts were ridiculed and we were denounced as lawbreakers and undesirable citizens. Then we felt it our duty to make the fight, and we do not regret taking that action."

ILLINOIS MINERS WIN

Operators Capitulate After Strike of Five Months.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—The five months fight between the Illinois coal operators and miners ended in victory for the employees. The scale of wages fixed by the miners at their meeting in Peoria was adopted.

The operators' capitulation was caused by the report that several of their members in the Peoria district were about to desert the organization and sign the union scale as individuals. During the long strike there was no violence.

CONSERVATIONISTS MEET IN ST. PAUL.

One of the Most Unique of Gatherings Assembles
Monday.

BIG JOB FOR C. PINGHOT

Former Forester Has Been Delegated to Prevent a Vote to Politician Congress to Turn Natural Resources
Over to the States.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 3.—The second national conservation congress, under the auspices of the National Conservation Association, which will be convened Monday by B. B. Baker, of Baltimore, President of the congress, will form one of the most unique gatherings in the history of America, in that every form of business, social, educational and domestic activity will be represented by the 6,000 delegates.

Mabel Boardman of Washington will speak on behalf of the National Red Cross. Mrs. James Chamberlain Harbison, Pa., will represent the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women. Mrs. Rhoda Chamberlain, with others, will represent the State Federation of Women's Clubs of Ohio. A dozen Southern women, including Mrs. Benton McMillin of Nashville, Tenn., and Mrs. W. B. Burney of Columbus, S. C., will represent the Women's National River and Harbor Congress.

Every State, every city, many counties, all of the leading organizations of women, the universities of the United States, business organizations, commercial clubs, civic bodies, clubs of sportsmen, scientific societies, organizations of automobile manufacturers, and even, it is said, an aeronauts organization, will be represented at the great congress.

There is no organization in the United States today that brings together such a wholly representative organization of American citizens as the National Conservation Congress.

It is before this body that Theodore Roosevelt, representing the "progressives," as they are called, will repeat his declaration that the Federal government ought to control the water power and most of the other resources of the country, because the states are not so well qualified as the Federal government to protect these industries for the people.

Before the same body Reed Smoot, the Senator from Utah, will advocate his bill, now before Congress, granting to the States the control of the water power within their confines.

Both Roosevelt and Smoot realize that a vote by the Congress on any topic would so thoroughly represent the opinion of the so-called "progressive" classes of American citizens, that it would carry great weight in the halls of state.

One of the chief duties of Clifford Burton, father of the conservation congress idea, during the congress will be to remain in constant readiness to prevent Smoot and certain Western personalities, including the governors of nine Northwestern States, from securing control of the congress and putting to vote the question of "State's rights."

St. Paul during conservation week, will be the scene for most of the meetings of the United States. Top of Lewis, president of the national U. S. Archibald John Ireland, Hobson, Henry of San Francisco, Huddell, Roosevelt, Benjamin Lindley, Missouri, John McMillen, President of the Southern Railway; Boylston—just a casual glance at the list of speakers and delegates reveals these names.

Hidden in the list of delegates, appointed by governors and commercial bodies, are the names of men who stand foremost in their respective communities.

In reality this is the first national conservation congress ever held in the United States. The congress at Seattle in 1909 was not representative and was largely projected by the State of Washington.

This congress was planned and arranged by the National Conservation Association, of which Clifford Burton is the president.

This association was formed after congress, following the suggestion of Congressman James Tawney of Minnesota had killed a measure by which Theodore Roosevelt, then President, hoped to organize a conservation commission as a government bureau.

It is believed that Roosevelt, in his address before the national conservation congress, will openly ply the attack against Tawney, as Minnesota in Tawney's State, and at this time, the Congressman is seeking re-election.

To say that no politics will openly crop out during the convention may be true; but there will be an undercurrent of politics running through the discussions because, already, the old split of "progressives" and "conservatives" has appeared in the formation of the program and will constantly widen as the program is carried out. The "progressives" have been the Congress has been pushed by the water-power interests and that Reed Smoot, who comes as delegate named by Gov. Spay of Utah, will be the floor leader of the "inter-

QUITS STATE SENATE RACE.

Templeton's Withdrawal Creates Divided Sensation.

Altoona, Pa., Sept. 3.—State Senator Chambers O. Templeton of Tyrone, representing the Blair-funkhouser district in the upper branch of the Pennsylvania legislature and one of the leading figures in Republican politics in this central part of the commonwealth, caused a decided sensation by announcing his intention of withdrawing his name as a candidate for re-election.

Business cares, Senator Templeton says, have forced him from the ticket.

For some days it was quietly reported in local business circles that Senator Templeton would withdraw for re-election, but to the public generally the action comes as a surprise.

DUN'S REVIEW OF TRADE

Increased Confidence in Business as Fall Draws Near.

New York, Sept. 3.—Dun's Review of Trade says today:

"Though there has been no pronounced change in business conditions, and while a quiet conservatism still prevails, yet the movement in most departments of trade and industry is indicative of increased confidence and wider activity as the fall season draws near.

"The week's improvement in iron and steel is indeed quite notable, the heavier demand for pig iron being especially a proof of improved conditions."

WILL VOTE FOR DEAD MAN

La Follette Contingent Will Back Tucker, Who Recently Killed Himself.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 3.—Despite the fact that Frank T. Tucker, La Follette candidate for attorney general, committed suicide at Oakbrook on Thursday, he is to be voted on for the office.

The leaders of the La Follette contingent realize that they are asking their supporters to vote for a dead man.

The scheme is that should the late candidate be pronounced the Republican nominee, the state central committee which the La Follette men expect to control, will, on the formal proof of Mr. Tucker's death, substitute a candidate.

The engineer and fireman of one train were killed and fully twenty passengers were injured, none very seriously.

STILL BELIEVES IN LARGER NAVY.

Teddy Tells Nebraskans It Is Greatest Asset for Peace.

FORTIFY THE CANAL, HE URGES

"Nothing Can Keep Us in State of Profound Peace," Says the Colonel. "More Than the Knowledge That Our Men Can Shoot Straight."

Omaha, Sept. 3.—Mr. Roosevelt in his address here advocated very strongly the "fortification" of the Panama canal. He said that to invite other nations to step in and guarantee the neutrality of this purely American work would be an act of utter weakness and folly.

It would mean, he declared, the complete abandonment of the Monroe Doctrine. It would be a blow to the prestige of the United States on the Pacific. It would be treason to the destiny of the republic.

Those who heard the colonel make these statements construed his remarks to be directed at President Taft, who does not share this opinion.

Large Navy, Greatest Asset.

Mr. Roosevelt was mighty emphatic in his speech. He treated the navy and impressed upon the crowd that he is in favor of increasing it. He spoke of the cruise around the globe of the fleet and pointed with pride to the fact that he had fooled those who said that it could not successfully be accomplished. A large navy, declared the colonel, is our greatest asset for peace.

He did not urge belligerence, but he urged strength.

As a help to the cause of international peace, Mr. Roosevelt said the cruise of the fleet was powerful. The chief material advantage to be gained from the canal construction will be the doubling of our navy by the connecting link between the two oceans.

For that reason we must take care of it ourselves and we won't have to ask any other nation what to do. It is the most important work that the government has undertaken in years.

How Teddy Beated Congress.

Mr. Roosevelt then went on to explain how he had secured enough money to get the fleet to the Pacific. And when Congress refused first to appropriate enough to continue the cruise he told them they could leave the fleet in the Pacific ocean if they cared to.

"Nothing can keep us in a state of profound peace," he exclaimed, "more than the knowledge that our men can shoot straight and that they won't if they have to."

Mr. Roosevelt appealed to the Nebraskans to get better posted on the status of the Panama canal. He said the people do not realize as they should the import of the work. He sketched the progress of it in order to show them how great the undertaking has been and how wonderfully it has been executed. He prophesied the canal will be finished a great deal sooner than ever he predicted. There was a striking emphasis laid on the necessity of this government fortifying the canal.

Fortify Panama Canal.

"We are in honor bound to fortify it ourselves," said the colonel, "and only by so doing can we effectively guarantee its neutrality and more over effectively guarantee that it shall not be used against us."

The crowd welcomed his approval. They were in hearty sympathy with Mr. Roosevelt.

The people of Nebraska are with the colonel all right, only they are not so demonstrative as the Kansans, who are positively wild-eyed.

Politicians by the score flocked to Omaha to whisper kind words to the colonel. Senators Burkett and Brown of this state and Senator Dolliver of Iowa were on hand all day long and they said lots of patriotic things about Mr. Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt at St. Joe spoke sarcastically of the "millionaires abroad and stated his objection to the pleasure-seeking class, that is the professional pleasure-seekers, being singled out as Americans.

Mr. Roosevelt is glad that the people of the west and the whole country, in fact, understand his position now. He has made himself clear.

Lead For Train Wreckers.

Hammond, Ind., Sept. 3.—Within ten days four attempts have been made to wreck Nickel Plate trains at different points between Hammond and Hegewisch, and railroad detectives confess they are baffled in their efforts to solve the mystery. Orders from detective headquarters were issued to "fill full of lead any one apprehended in the act of attempting to wreck a train."

Auto Hits Car; Woman Killed.

Kokomo, Ind., Sept. 3.—Mrs. C. A. Ford, aged forty-eight, wife of a prominent manufacturer of this city, was killed and her son, Carlford, aged twenty, was painfully hurt when a touring car driven by the young man collided with a trolley car.

Governor Harmon Wants Grand Jury to Act at Columbus.

WILL NOT FORCE ARBITRATION

Ohio's Executive Sends Letter to Attorney General Denman to Make the Investigation Swift and Thorough. No Mercy Should Be Shown.

Columbus, O., Sept. 3.—Governor Harmon, by letter, called upon Attorney General Denman to take up a grand jury probe of the Columbus street car strike as he did in the grand jury investigation of the Newark lynching.

Denman is now at Lakeland, Mich. His assistant said that the department would begin work as soon as Denman returned. "Nothing can be done before the grand jury, however, until the next term of court, beginning Sept. 19."

Governor Harmon also issued a statement in which he declined to call on the Columbus Railway and Light company to arbitrate the strike as requested by state labor leaders.

"I also request that the attention of the grand jury be confined to cases which will be brought before them by commitment from magistrates, but that they go further and make sweeping investigation of all crimes connected with the pending street car trouble."

"Let the investigation be swift, thorough, and sure and all the resources of the state will be at your back."

"Special attention is directed to dynamite outrages. No mercy should be shown the terrorist who, lacking the courage of the mob and rioters, strikes in dark places, sets his deadly stuff and then hides himself to await the explosion with fiendish glee."

The DING and the MAN

WITH SOME INCIDENTAL RELATION TO THE WOMAN
By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY
ILLUSTRATIONS BY DEAROLD MELVILLE

"It's all right," he shouted. "It's turned out better than anybody could have expected. It's killed the opposition dead. Everybody is for you now."

Gormly heard him as in a dream. He allowed him to shake his hand as he might have shaken a pump handle, could that ancient and useful article have been found in New York. He was looking with all his soul in his glance at Eleanor Haldane, who had not come forward, but stood by the chair in which she had sat, her hands tightly clasped the low back of it. The color that had flooded her face when she first saw him had subsided almost as quickly as it had come. She was very pale and trembling.

Then at Last, He Understood.

dent. He remembered that her brother had taken her one copy of his letter last night. What did her presence mean?

"I just came down here," continued young Haldane. "To tell you, these things to relieve your anxiety, and to bring Eleanor. She wanted to see you about—well, you know about what of course—and."

Gormly did not know at all; but he nodded vaguely.

"Of course, by this time you've read all about it in The Planet. That old miser came in like a scene in a play. It was perfectly splendid, and I suppose, he looked meaningfully at his sister, his glance calling the color once more to her cheeks. "That you have read the other communication, which is scarcely less important."

Gormly stared at him in utter amazement.

"I must say," he continued mischievously, "that for a man who is getting everything he wants as you are you are singularly unindifferent about it."

"Mr. Gormly," interposed the woman, "I don't believe that you have read the morning paper."

"Not yet, Miss Haldane."

"Oh!" cried the girl in great dismay.

"By Jove!" exclaimed the young man, "to think of it! I should have had the first copy from the press brought to me. I had been in your place. Well, then, I'll tell you the whole story. Or you've got it in The Planet and you can read it yourself. Well, excuse you while you glance over it; won't you wait?"

"I don't understand," said Gormly, lifting the paper slowly. He had not yet taken his eyes off Miss Haldane.

"On second thought," said the young man, "I guess Eleanor had better tell you herself. If you'll excuse me, you two, for a few moments, I'll go into the library."

"Livingstone!" cried the girl impatiently; but her brother only laughed as he left the room, carefully closing the door behind him.

"What is it that I am to be told, Miss Haldane?" asked Gormly, stepping toward her, paper still in hand.

Miss Haldane was in a dilemma. She had been surprised when he had entered the room that Gormly had not greeted her differently. Her position was a tremendously difficult one at best, and his failure to read the paper had rendered it almost insupportable.

"I think," she faltered at last, "that I had better go. You can see me later in the day, and—"

"No," said Gormly resolutely. "You must not go yet. You came down here for some purpose. That fact that I have not read the papers seems to have affected you strangely. I can look them over and perhaps obtain some clue to your conduct; but I would rather you would tell me what it is, do what you were going to do, say what you were going to say when you came in, than try to find out from the newspapers."

"Don't you want to hear what they say about you?"

"I had rather hear what they have to say than anything in the world, and I want to tell you first of all what comfort, what pride, what satisfaction, I take in your presence here. I know you read the morning paper."

"Your brother had my permission to tell it to you last night, if you were awake."

"I was awake and waiting for him."

"Your interest does me much honor," continued the man, "and that you have come to me now this morning is, as I say, the greatest thing that could happen to me. I don't really care now what the world thinks. You have given me evidence enough that you still respect me."

"You don't know all the evidence yet," said the woman faintly.

She forced herself to look at him. If she had consulted her inclinations, she would have run away; but that could not be.

"Yes," said Gormly vaguely, scarcely noting her low voiced statement. "Now that it is all over and now that I have lost you, it indeed is proper to say I had not what I had never possessed and never could have possessed. You will understand that it was this incident to which I alluded when you said you respected me because I had been a perfectly straight, square man. Your words cut me to the heart; not because I wasn't straight or square now or then I had not made what amends I could for the actions of a boy and a fool since I had become a man, but because after this I could never persuade you or any one that I had not always been so, and because I could not bear to have even your respect on a false pretense."

I wanted to tell you many times, and you know of course that it things had about themselves directly and you could have cared for me, I should have told you the whole story before I allowed you to say you would become my wife."

"I am sure that you would have done so, Mr. Gormly," said the girl.

"And that you have come here to give me that assurance, to show me that you have not lost confidence in me in spite of the frightful tangle in our affairs, my antagonism to you—the Gotham Freight Traction company and then—this. That I take it was your purpose in coming?"

"Yes," faltered the girl, "that, and—"

"What more?" asked the man. "Whatever it is, it is in my power to give it. It is yours. What is it that you want?"

The woman opened her mouth to speak. She moistened her lips. Words apparently were difficult, perhaps impossible.

"What is it that you want, Miss Haldane?" asked Gormly again.

"I want you!" she said in her low, clear voice.

Gormly lifted his hand and stared at her.

"You want—me?" he faltered.

"What do you mean?"

"I mean to be your wife," was the direct answer.

"Yes. That is, if you—still—want me."

Gormly stared at her in amazement.

"Do I understand rightly?" said the man, shutting his teeth together. "After all that is in the paper this morning, do you mean to say that you will marry me?"

"I do mean just that," was the answer.

"Why do you come to me now?"

"Can't you think of the reason?"

"I don't want to think; I want to hear."

"I love you then," said the girl resolutely. "You are the bravest, noblest, most splendid man on earth. If you will take me, I will be the happiest, proudest, thankfullest woman that the sun shines on."

"Take you?" repeated Gormly. "But I can't understand—"

"Will you understand this?" asked the girl.

She walked slowly toward him. She laid her hand on his shoulder. She lifted her face to his. His arm went around her waist. What she had begun, he finished. He swept her to him. She gave herself up yieldingly to his embrace. When his lips sought hers, there was no avoidance. Her arm slipped round his neck and tightened there. And then at last he understood. After awhile she drew away from him.

"You don't ask me what I have done?" she said.

"Neither know nor care since you are here and you are mine."

"Perhaps I should not have been here," she returned, "if we had not been already engaged and the engagement already announced."

"I am very stupid this morning," said Gormly in some bewilderment.

"You certainly are," was the answer. "For a man who aspires to be mayor of New York, you are quite the stupidest and dearest person imaginable."

"I have wit enough at least to know where I can get correct information upon all points."

"And where is that?"

"Here!" said Gormly, pressing with his own the loveliest lips in the world, which smiled at him and were not refused his touch. "What have you done and how has our engagement."

which, so far as I know, was not entered into until a moment since, been announced?"

"Read that!" she cried, releasing herself from his grasp and handing him the neglected copy of The Planet. She turned to the editorial page and pointed to a postscript to the leader of the morning, which was a discussion, highly eulogistic of Gormly's action and character. The postscript was in the form of a belated communication which had been received at the office of The Planet at the last moment, and had been forced into the paper because it furnished the final and completing touch to the other revelations it contained. It had been printed in heavy black capitals, double spaced. Coming closer to her, so that he held her with one arm, Gormly took the paper with the other and read.

"The engagement of Mr. George Gormly to Miss Eleanor Haldane is authoritatively announced. The future mayor of New York is to be congratulated upon having won for his promised wife the young woman, who not only from her beauty of mind and person, but because of her lively and practical interest in the poor, the oppressed and suffering, is easily first among the daughters of our great city. The Planet feels that this announcement supplies the completing touch to the other admirable qualifications which Mr. Gormly possesses for the great office to which he has aspired and to which the people mean to see him elected tomorrow."

"Who did it?" asked Gormly.

"I did."

"But why?"

"First of all, because I found out that I loved you."

"Why did you do it last night?"

"Because I believed that such an announcement this morning, with its implication of trust, and honor, and affection, would do more to establish you in the public confidence than almost anything that could be imagined."

"You have made my election certain. But whether you have or not, I could almost believe that winning you I don't care."

"Don't say that," interrupted the woman, delighted nevertheless at this splendid declaration.

"Your father and mother, do they know?"

"Certainly. I told them at breakfast this morning."

"How did they take it?"

"You can imagine what my mother thought and said," answered the girl, smiling faintly.

"And your father?"

She sighed deeply.

"My father, I imagine, is not unwilling to have a friend at court. What are you going to do when you are elected?"

"Marry you the first thing."

"I mean after that."

"I mean to make you happy."

"Do be reasonable. I mean what are you going to do with the opposition?"

"I am going to do justly and fairly by all men, whoever they are, whatever they may have done. Mine shall be no policy of ruin. Some things must be broken down; but my aim shall be to rebuild."

"If I thought you were for the man, but that the woman did. They know, too, that you gave her your home in the snow and that she abandoned you. Why, man, you're a hero!"

"To be perfectly frank with you, Haldane, this is all most interesting and gratifying. How on earth Bill Hamilton turned up at the right moment and told the truth, I don't know; but as a matter of fact, I do truly care more for your sister's sake and I got more satisfaction out of the fact that I am going to be married to her immediately after the election than I will in winning, if we win."

"You are sure to win," said Haldane.

"I told you not to say that," said the girl to her lover.

"Now read the paper, and then we'll go upstairs."

What more is there to tell? Miss Haldane, in view of the now relationship between them, boldly rode up to the auditorium in the great stairs of the side of Gormly in the tonneau of her brother's big car. The enormous crowd that filled the great hall to overflowing, that packed the streets outside, that suspended all traffic; the frantic cheering that greeted him as he stood overlooking the greatest multitude that had ever filled that section of Broadway, Miss Haldane on one side and his old friend of a quarter of a century back, Col. Bill Hamilton, on the other, with Haldane, Whitefield and a great galaxy of supporters in the background, including Abbott, the cub reporter, scribbling like mad on the greatest story of the day—these have all passed into history. The result of the election, which occurred next day, is of course known to everybody.

"It is over," he said, "and we have won!"

"Yes. No one congratulates you as I."

"I have a great deal to live up to."

was the slow answer.

"As mayor of New York?" she questioned softly.

"As your husband," he replied.

—THE END.

BRINGS DOG HOME TO DIE

Washington, Women Wanted—Canine Pet to Breathe His Last on American Soil.

There are some funny people in the world. Among these are women, to whom cats and dogs, parrots and mocking birds are more than creatures with souls. Mrs. Hawkins Taylor of Washington, has a building that she calls Burch. It is just a petting place, probably was never of any use to anybody excepting to lick the hand that fed him, which is, of course, a little to one which has no time to lavish attention on children.

Baron accompanies Mrs. Taylor wherever she goes, and she spends a great deal of her time in travel. Baron is now old and feeble and armed with ophthalmitis. In other words, Baron has been too well, and probably has gone to drop. Mrs. Taylor recently returned from abroad, and the story goes that she came back because she feared Baron was going to die, and that he ought to breathe his last on American soil. Days of this kind to human beings would make the world better.

A Different Case.

He stopped in front of a grocery to look at some berries, and, after he had heard the grocer saying to a customer that the railroad had no legal or moral right to raise rates, he burst in with:

"But the same rule should apply to you. You raise prices without consulting any law, don't you?"

"But it's different, sir—far different."

"I don't see how. When I was young here the other day you had blackberries marked at 10 cents. Today they are marked at 14. By what legal or moral right did you mark them up?"

"I will tell you, sir. Yesterday I contributed 50 cents in cash to the bazaar. This morning I got fifty boxes of berries from the market. I put a cent a box on the berries, and on the price, so that if the bazaar came around I could get my money back."

"But you get back double what you contributed."

"Oh, the other 50 cents is my reward for being good-hearted. You see, when you come to figure it out it's nothing at all like the railroad case."

Would Help Some.

"Mister, I want help!"

"What's the matter?"

"I am going down the toboggan slide to perdition."

"What do you want me to do, grease the slide?"

SPANISH ARMADA BULLION SOUGHT.

Tobermory, a popular summer resort on the island of Mull, off the west coast of Scotland, is having the time of its life.

The transient population, which is almost doubling the roofs of the hotels and boarding houses, has its attention centered on the diving operations which have for their object the fishing up of bullion estimated to be of a gross value of $37,500,000 and supposed to have gone down in the Spanish armada treasure ship Florencia, known in historical records as the "high gallery" decked Tuscan galloon, which sank during a terrific storm in Tobermory bay just 322 years ago.

William Fitzgerald, submarine engineer and inventor of London, and Lieutenant Colonel M. K. Fox, also of London, who is superintending the quest on behalf of the "Pieces of Eight syndicate," are the magicians after the ideal of the nightseeing visitors.

One of Famous Armada.

Scattered by the shot, the fire-ships and the merciless tactics of Drake and Hawkins and their men in the Dover strait, the Florencia was one of the 150 Spanish war vessels that were driven to the "inhospitable and isolated north." Then, caught in that hurricane which Philip II. called the "contention of God," the galloon perished with all her wealth of guns, treasure and humanity went to the bottom of Tobermory bay.

Periodical attempts, more or less successful, have been made to locate the treasure ship, and the local raters of history and prophets of past days have conspired to invent the sunken galloon with fabulous wealth.

But if Mr. Fitzgerald, assisted by a daring diver of the name of Daniel MacKenzie, doesn't bring up the loot this time it will not be for want of method. As a matter of fact, by the time that the six months at his disposal for the search have expired, the area within which the 1,000-ton galloon of the armada is thought to be resting will be a honeycomb of perforations to a depth of eighteen feet in the bed of the bay.

Spanish Relics Found.

Diver MacKenzie has been right on the job from the moment he donned the submarine helmet and first dropped down below the surface of the briny within a hundred feet of the steambreak pier. A series of preliminary dives yielded his harvest.

First Dive—Small sword, metal corset in "wooden scabbard," several iron articles.

Second Dive—Very old, talking tool, pieces of oak.

Third Dive—Stock of one of a ship's anchors.

Paris Smoking Pipes.

High Price of Cigars and Cigarettes Revives Old Practice.

Pipes are again in favor in Paris. The high taxes on tobacco have been their trump. The pipe has invaded the fashionable world, and the reason for this is the increased price of cigars, cigarettes and all high grade tobacco. The sale of the ordinary smoking tobacco is daily increasing.

The dealers in pipes are naturally delighted. Three times more pipes are being sold than in any previous year. The man who goes to the seaside or the mountain resorts takes a pipe with him. The pipe enters into the preparations for the shooting season, and even the college students are good customers.

France Likes Horseflesh.

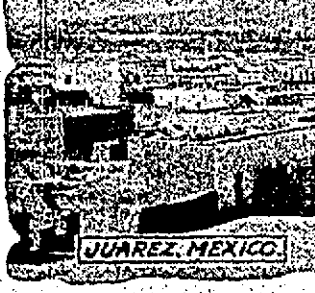

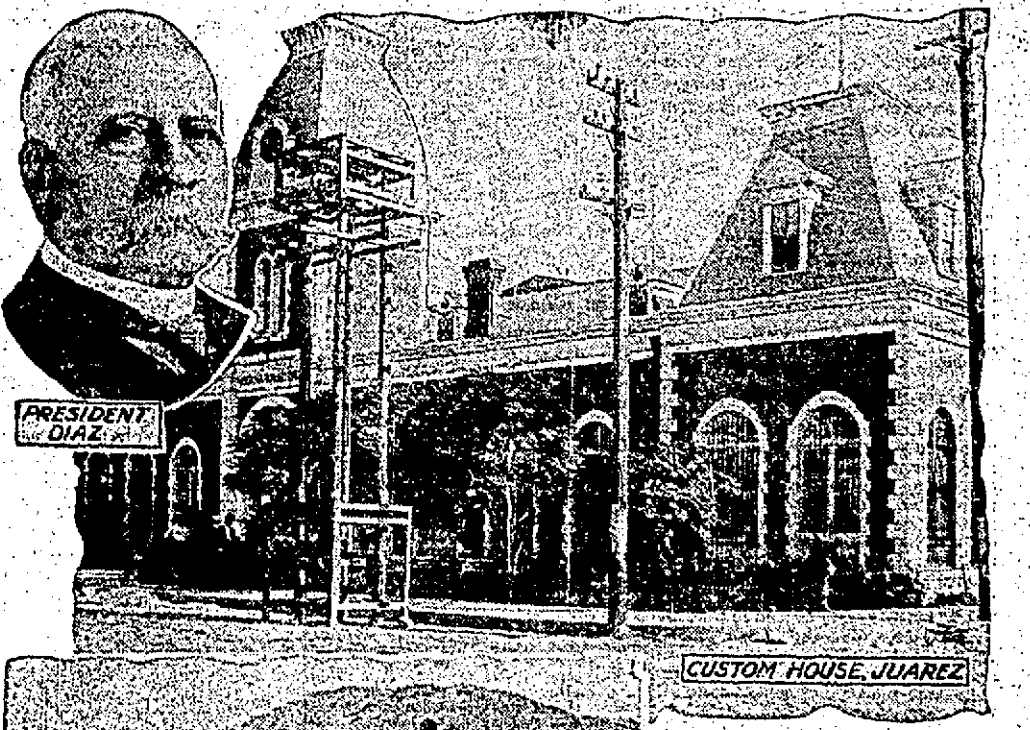

The consumption of horseflesh in France, according to figures, is constantly on the increase. In Paris alone there are 400 meat shops, mainly in the poorer quarters, where horseflesh alone is sold, and the consumption now exceeds 200,000 animals a year, the price of from 10 to 15 cents a pound being a powerful argument to the poor.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—To assist Mexican people in celebrating the centennial of their independence the commission representing the United States will spend several days in various parts of the southern republic. Their first stop will be at Juarez, just across the international border from El Paso, Tex. This is one of the quaintest cities in Mexico. Steiner of Vermont, chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs and Chairman of the Commission; and Mrs. Foster; Senator Lee S. Overman of North Carolina, and daughter, Mrs. Edwin C. Gregory, Senator Coo I. Crawford of South Dakota and Mrs. Crawford, Representative James J. Sladen of Texas and Mrs. Sladen.

MONACO SEEKS FOR WAY TO SPEND BIG SURPLUS.

Annual Revenue $200,000, Expenditure Nil, Puzzles Gambling Principality.

A few Americans who happened to be visiting the principality of Monaco at the time when it was struggling with its first elections had an exceptional opportunity to enjoy themselves. Some months ago Monaco suddenly woke up one morning with a thirst for parliamentary government and marched upon the prince's palace. A revolution was averted by the prince consenting to receive a deputation, to whom he said, "If you want to elect each other to something, by all means do so, or words to that effect."

The Monagueses accordingly elected each other to a body which they called the communal council after going through all the proper formalities of shouting and spellbinding. The body, electorally at once split up into four distinct parties, the Royal Monagueses, the True Monagueses, the Monaco Patriots and the Progressive Nationalists of Monaco. The last named party came out at the top of the polls and holds the majority in the communal council.

The prince has granted the council supplies of $200,000 a year. The question before the council, improbable as it may seem, is what to do with the money. Every public expenditure is covered already several times over by the profits of the Monte Carlo gambling tables. The council's budget therefore will work out something like this: Annual revenue $200,000, expenditure nil.

The day of the political boss has not yet dawned in Monaco, but it will probably come, and then there may be some modification in this unique balance sheet.

The Bitner team, by defeating Bute 2 to 0 last evening became even a more formidable contender for second place than before. The victory placed the Bitner boys in undisputed possession of the third rung of the ladder and but half a game distant from the Morgan valley boys.

Both teams played splendid ball but the Bute boys were unable to make hits when they were needed to produce runs. Bitner, on the other hand, managed to sneak a couple of runs across the home plate while the Bute boys were thinking of something else. This game caused the two teams lots of trouble. First they tied over it, then a later arrangement to play fell through, Bute claiming a forfeit. Bute gave up the claim and agreed to play the game over. The teams did and Bitner won.

A meeting of the league will be held this evening to arrange a schedule for next week. There are sufficient postponed games to keep the teams busy. It will hardly be possible to finish the season next week.

Lock Keeper Milks His Cows While Packets Wait to Pass.

"Held at the Lock," or "Milking Cows by the Riverside," conveys an idea that is fully explained in the long book of the good ship Deane Smith, in the packet trade between Pittsburgh and Morgantown, in explanation of a delay at one of the up-river dams Monday night says the Pittsburgh Gazette Times.

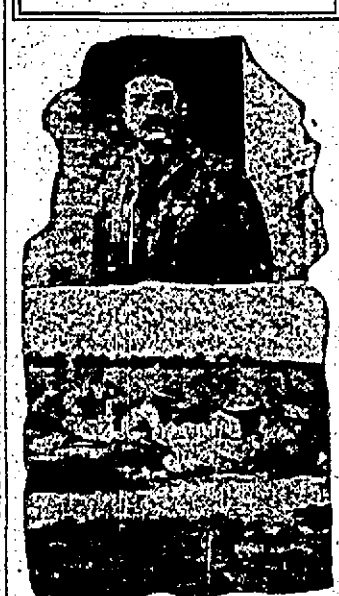

Several hours behind schedule, owing to increased business and fog, the Deane Smith pushed up the Monacauch Monday night with the officers urging upon the engineer the necessity for full steam ahead.

One of the upper dams appeared in sight, and the usual signal, one long and one short whistle, was sounded, for the lock. Arriving at the dam in a few minutes, Purser J. R. Dunlap, standing on the guards with his official report, found the gates closed and no sign of the lock employees on the walls.

Mate Charles Justice, on the roof, which in hand, noted it taking off, nine, ten, eleven minutes, and was about to order Pilot George B. Henderson to sound either the fire alarm

Old Veterans Know How to Do It, Too. As This Shows.

H. O'Neil, the Smithfield veteran who learned how to shoot in the dark days that towed the course and tried the wits of men, and wrong bitter tears of anguish from the hearts of women, writes whimsically concerning baseball and its critics. He says: "The manager of the Smithfield baseball team takes exceptions to my criticism of his management of the team in the game with Point Marion, August 20. He underestimates the feelings in the Uniontown Herald of August 21. The understudy talks rather ugly. He calls me a 'mule' and 'a parasite upon the taxpayers.' He asserts that I was much because my son and others 'warmed the bench.' All this vituperation does not change the fact that Smithfield lost to us by two errors made by two of the managers' substitutes.

The son did not warm the bench for the very excellent reason that he is not a member of the team and was not at the game, much less in it. It is true that I was a soldier in the Union Army and drew a small pension for shooting and being shot at. This tax on figures contributes a large share of this expense. If the manager will figure out just how much of this amount he paid before his house was cut off I will cheerfully send him my share in postage stamps. But, what's the use? No long ago learned not to kick a skunk when we meet it.

It looks as though the manager of the Smithfield baseball club had better leave older men alone especially old veterans.

FINE PROGRAM TODAY.

Thirty-five Cars in Races on Indianapolis Speedway.
Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 3.—With a race course in perfect condition and twenty-five pilots and thirty-five racing cars on the program the Indianapolis motor speedway began its closing motor meet of the year today.

The signs are all favorable for the greatest program in the history of the track. The prizes and trophies are worth about $15,000 and they have attracted some of the greatest speed demons, both in drivers and machines, known to the racing world.

Captain G. L. Bumbrough of Indianapolis has provided a novel feature for today in the shape of a balloon ride for a number of prominent automobile race drivers. The trip will be made in the balloon and the start will be made at the close of the racing program.

CAPTURES THIEF AND FAINTS

After Performing Feat Mrs. Haffa Proves She is Still a Woman.
Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Mrs. Oscar Haffa captured a burglar in her home and later, just to prove that she was not an extraordinary woman, fainted. The burglar gave the name of George H. Robertson.

Mrs. Haffa was awakened while the burglar was counting some change in her handbag and who got out of bed quickly and piloted the man from the rear, at the same time calling for help and throwing Robertson to the floor. Mrs. Haffa's daughter heard her mother's cries and ran to her assistance. The two women held the burglar by sitting on him until policemen came.

EVERSON COMES BACK.

Will Play Marguerite on Central Grounds Next Saturday.
Manager John Gordon's Car Shop team will play the Marguerite team for $50 a side at the Standard grounds, Saturday, September 10. Marguerite beat the Everson team last Saturday and the Car Shop boys are now thirsting for revenge, being confident that they can wallop the chesty Sowkley bunch today.

Horne will be on the firing line for the Shopsy and Goodwin will do the flinging for Marguerite. The Everson team is heavily backed by Scott-John cash and the meeting of these two teams will prove to be interesting.

CHARGES AGAINST EXPRESS COMPANIES

Excessive Profits of Smaller Concerns Basis for Petition.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE BOARD

Is Asked to Conduct an Investigation With a View to Securing Lower Rates on Commodities Hauled. Other Demands Made.

Dividends aggregating $3,200,000 in 10 years and an accumulated surplus of approximately $1,500,000 in amount, all on a capitalization of $100,000 and an actual investment of $71,283.91—such is the showing made by one of the minor express companies, the Great Northern, which is made the basis for a concerted attack upon the express companies of the country in general by commercial bodies and individual shippers from all over the United States.

The attack is in the form of a petition to the Interstate commerce commission to institute an inquiry into the charge that the express companies' rates are unjust and burdensome and their classification, regulations and practices are unreasonable, the petition alleging that the merchants of the country, in particular, have suffered therefrom for years and still suffer. Citing the figures quoted, the petitioners allege that the net returns to the express companies have been out of all proportion to the services performed and the capital invested, a disproportion so enormous as to be incredible, but for indisputable evidence.

They claim, further, that the enormous accumulations and enormous dividends paid upon small investments establish the extent to which extortion has been practiced and they invoke relief at the hands of the commerce commission.

The case of the Great Northern Express Company is cited simply as a typical one, the claim being made that the investments of other express companies is approximately no greater in proportion to the amount of business done, while the profits of some of them are even more excessive. In this connection, moreover, it is claimed that the express companies pay to the railroads, the officers of which are, many of them, shareholders of the former, a disproportionate share of their gross express receipts, about 50 per cent, simply for car haulage, and handling of shipments and terminal services being rendered by the express companies themselves, with the result that the latter impose charges upon shippers that are discriminating often in respect to location.

PASSENGERS CAMPING OUT

Big Steamship Grounds and Travelers Taken Off to Island.
Seattle, Wash., Sept. 3.—The Alaska-Pacific Steamship company's 100,000-ton steamship "Watson" went aground on a reef near Nish bay and lies in a dangerous position on the rocks.

All of the ninety-two passengers aboard the vessel were taken ashore to Wadach island in small boats and are safely camped, awaiting the arrival of rescuers, who are hurrying to them.

Witnesses Runaway, Then Falls Dead.
Woolster, Co., Sept. 3.—Mrs. Samuel Wenger, an aged Apple Creek woman, fell dead when she saw John Burgoon, a Woolster man, hurt in a runaway. Burgoon's horse, hinged, pulled the front four from the buggy and Burgoon was thrown to the ground. His face was covered with blood when he got up and the woman screamed and fell unconscious.

LOOKING FOR WORK.

No Need For Jails When Hypnotist Von Kraemer Gets a Job.

New York, Sept. 3.—A middle-aged man, who said he was Professor Heinrich von Kraemer, visited the domestic relations court, and applied for the position of court hypnotist, saying that he could lessen crime to such an extent that the city would be able to dispense with half of the present force of policemen and decrease the jail accommodations.

The magistrate read the visitor's card and turned him over to Miss Rose McQuade, the probation officer. She asked the visitor if he could cure drunken husbands of wife beating.

"Yes, I make him so that he never can strike her a blow so long as he's under the influence of my power," the professor explained.

He explained that if the hypnotized husband failed, his arm would become rigid. On the same principle when a hypnotized thief started to reach out for a bank roll or some other property not belonging to him the arm would become rigid and the fingers would refuse to grasp.

The hypnotist was told that the civil service commission had made no allowance for the position of court hypnotist.

CLOAKMAKERS' STRIKE ENDS

Settlement Effected on "Preferential Union Shop" Idea.

New York, Sept. 3.—The strike of the cloakmakers which started on July 5 is ended. An agreement, accepted by both sides was reached at a conference.

The settlement was on the lines suggested by Louis D. Brandeis of Boston several weeks ago. His idea, the "preferential union shop," was first brought out then. The present agreement contains a clause by which a "union shop" is to be maintained, which, it is understood, is a shop in which union wages and standards prevail and where union workers, other things being equal, are to have the preference.
